

A Flexible Website

Written by layer3

Saturday, 07 July 2007 04:54 - Last Updated Monday, 12 July 2010 14:24

There are many reasons to put a website in your business functions portfolio, however one key consideration is the flexibility of that site. How easy is it going to be for you or your personnel to use? Can you change your website? Do you want to change your website? There are many factors that go into building and designing a website however we believe that a content managed website will give you the greatest flexibility and make your website more useful over a longer period of time because as the owner you will be able to change the site to meet your needs.